EXCHANGE BANKING HOUSE,

AND

BROKER'S OFFICE.

Bridge-street, Georgetown.

THIS is intended as a permanent establishment, and the community will find it one of the greatest conveniences in the United States, and of great public utility. At this house the fair exchange on the different bank notes from every part of the union can at all times be had: It is to be hoped that, by the operations of this office, the community will get rid of a host of Shinocks, Shavers, Secret and Running Brokers, who infest the District, frequently proclaiming the failure of country solvent banks, for the express purpose of purchasing the notes of such institutions at great discounts. Business under the following heads will be transacted. This establishment possesses funds to negotiate for any amount, and all business done for cash.

1st. All bank checks, bills at sight, post notes not due, and bank notes from all parts of the United States, bought and sold.

2d. All notes, bills of exchange, dividends and interests, collected and remitted according to orders.

3d. The notes of the United States' bank and all of its branches received at par.

4th. Strangers, citizens, and others, may deposit current money for safe keeping—and if left for thirty days, or longer, will receive at the rate of six per cent. per annum for the same.

5th. All business in the line of a money broker promptly attended to for a small commission.

6th. All southern and western traders, bringing to the district large sums of southern and western bank notes, can deposit for safe keeping, and draw for the same as may suit their convenience.

7th. Prompt attention paid to the orders of all respectable brokers and exchange offices throughout the United States—who will please to favor me occasionally with their rates of exchange on bank notes and bills.

Exchange & Broker's Office,

Georgetown, District of Columbia.

ROMULUS RIGGS.

AT his office, next door below Crawford's tavern, Bridge-st Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank Notes of the Western Banks at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U. States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns;—all persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on.

Valuable Family Medicines.

JUST received direct from the proprietors, the following valuable Medicines, all of which have been in use for a number of years past, in almost every part of the United States; have been highly patronised by people of the first respectability; and approved by those who have had occasion to make use of them, for the cure of those disorders, for which they are severally calculated.

Dr. Lee's Genuine (Windham) Bilious Pills,

Universally known and used throughout the United States as a Family Medicine. The fame of these pills has become so great that many have attempted to counterfeit them—to guard against this, the proprietors have procured a Stereotype Label, and each box of Genuine Lee's Pills will hereafter be enclosed in one of these labels, with these words on the sides; "Lee's Genuine Windham Bilious Pills," and on the end of the Label the words, "Samuel Lee, patentee, &c. I. Thompson, agent, joint proprietor," &c. and should any be offered for sale without said Label on them, the purchaser may be apprised that they are counterfeit.

Dr. Thompson's Celebrated Eye-Water:

For the cure of inflamed and sore eyes of almost every description. This valuable preparation comes highly recommended from the most respectable sources. Price 50 and 25 cents a bottle.

Dr. Rawson's Genuine Itch Ointment:

A certain and safe cure for that disagreeable complaint, as well as other irruptions of the skin. Price 37½ cents a box.

Dr. Rawson's Anti-Bilious and Stomachic Bitters,

For weakly and infirm constitutions. Price 37½ cents a box.

Hinckley's Infallible Remedy for the Piles,

A most valuable medicine. Price 50 cents a box.

Specific Drops for the Tooth Ache,

Which in almost every case, gives instant relief, in that distressing complaint. Price 37½ cents a bottle.

Cooley's Vegetable Elixir, for Coughs, Asthmas, Consumptions, &c.

A very valuable medicine in those complaints. Price 50 cents a bottle.

To the Public.

AN unusual sensibility has been excited in the minds of our countrymen by the copper plate engraving of the Declaration of Independence recently published, accompanied by fac similes of the signatures of those illustrious patriots who framed the document by which our independence was announced to the world. We feel, while we dwell on those signatures, as if we were ushered into the immediate presence of characters so exalted, and we seem for a time to participate in all the emotion which they felt on the approach of so awful a crisis—Hostile armies, desolate fields, towns and cities in conflagration—carnage and death in its most frightful forms appeared in prophetic vision on the one hand, and more than all, the complicated horrors, ignominy and slavery were presented for their acceptance on the other; they deliberated, they paused, they trembled, and at last solemnly appealing to the God of battles, they resolved that the United States were and ought to be free, sovereign and independent. These illustrious patriots, with five solitary exceptions, have now mingled with the common mould—they survive only in their country's glory and in the recollection of a grateful people. But it would be consoling to the present generation, separated as they now are from those patriots, by the intervention of the tomb, to become more intimately acquainted with their revolutionary benefactors. We love to dwell on the features of such men, snatched by the pencil from the oblivion of the grave, and emulate the prominent feats of their biography. Impressed with these ideas, the subscriber proposes, if suitable encouragement is given, to publish the lives of those patriots in numbers, until the whole is completed. The work will be executed in a style not inferior to any European productions, and the portraits by masters of acknowledged merit. The biography will be written by Paul Allen, esq. whose intimacy with the several signers, whose familiarity with the privations and hardships they had to undergo, and whose well known talents will be sufficient to ensure the patronage of an enlightened people. In the execution of this work, all that the publisher dares to promise is, that he will endeavor to deserve the confidence of his countrymen, and that no exertion on his part will be wanting to prevent an abuse of that confidence. He ventures to solicit the assistance of those gentlemen in possession of authentic facts and anecdotes, by communicating the intelligence that will serve to illustrate the characters and to enrich the biography of those founders of the American Republic.—Those who are in possession of their portraits would enlarge the obligation by a loan of the same.

A prospectus with the terms will be given in a few days.

The National Register

IS a paper which is published, every Saturday, at the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, and each number contains sixteen pages octavo, in small but very legible type. It makes two volumes in the year; and every volume is accompanied with a copious Index. The price per annum is five dollars, payable in advance. The Public Documents, both foreign and domestic; the proceedings of Congress, and authentic news of every description, are regularly inserted therein, and accompanied by critical and explanatory remarks. Its value is also enhanced by occasional reviews of literary works; and all its sentiments are decidedly American, independent of all party considerations. For this work, which is well established, regularly published, and transmitted weekly to subscribers by the mail, the public patronage is respectfully solicited.

GAZETTE
AND
Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

PUBLISHED BY
SAMUEL SNOWDEN,
ROYAL-STREET.

Daily Gazette, 7 dolls...Country, 5 dolls.

THURSDAY, MARCH 18, 1819.

Mr. SNOWDEN,

Anticipating the rich banquet of intellect, which the wide spread fame of Mrs Bartley had induced the expectation of, on Tuesday evening I visited the Theatre.—Enraptured with her Widow Cheerly, I falsely concluded, for the moment, that in it she had realized my warmest expectations; but, heavens! how far short did any thing I had ever witnessed before fall in the comparison with her inimitable recitation of Collins's Ode on the Passions!—With a voice sweet as the music of the spheres—with a gesture dignified and commanding as the concentrated charms of the Graces—with attitudes such as would form models for a Grecian statuary—an eye beaming the full effulgence of soul and passion, she arrested, as by a right, the unlimited and enthusiastic attention of all.—Easy as though surrounded by a circle of intimate associates, Mrs. Bartley was the first, the most admired person of the company, possessing that winning species of acting that rendered all around her at home:—she charmed as much by this endearing trait as by the unequalled excellence of her performance. Correctly to describe the effect of her recitation, would be impossible; the eye must see—the ear hear—the soul feel it. The best emotions of the heart seemed softened, subsidized: her tongue and action, the imperial charm that fascinated and governed them.

Sweet mistress of the tragic art,
Yours' the power to wake the heart;
Its soften'd throb—its burning glow—
Its sudden burst—its silent throe;
The low fetch'd sigh of joy complete;
The thrilling chill, cold, numb'ring sweet;
To wake the tear of joyous pain;
To teach the soul a proud disdain,
For all but feeling's lofty sway,—
Burning, soften'd, like the sinking ray
Of Heaven's great sun, the eternal orb of day. ALBERTO.

MORE INDIAN LAW.

By the following article, which we extract from the St. Lous (Missouri Territory) Enquirer, of the 3d of February, it will be seen, that Gen. Jackson's energetic example has found a humble imitator in the officer commanding the famous "Yellow Stone Expedition." To punish an alleged theft, he first confined in irons for a few days, and then whipped, an Indian chief, and four of his men, as a means of inducing them "to mend their manners and morals." By what court, on what evidence, or under what law, this summary and plenary justice was administered, we are not informed. It is said that the five culprits were "recognized as the offenders." Whether this means that they were bound over on the charge, or acknowledged, or viewed, as such, is not stated. Perhaps the Judge in the present instance, took the course, which it has been said would have been the more discrete one in another notable recent case, and concluded it best to have no part of the proceedings reduced to black and white, lest peradventure the record might rise up in terror against him thereafter. As for the harangue of the Chief, before his ignominious punishment, we presume it was considered as "solely and exclusively made up of technical cavils at the evidence" against him, and therefore produced no effect on the mind of his inexorable judge—He ordered them flogged; and the account says, that even has produced "a deep impression on the minds of the whole nation"—We have no doubt it has; and it would not be a very strange thing if its effects should first or last, be deeply felt by the white inhabitants. Indian injuries are never forgotten—Indian revenge is satiated only with blood.

Copy of a letter from an officer of the Yellow Stone expedition to his friend at Belle Fontaine dated

Martin's Cantonment, }
14th January, 1819. }

Sir—The conduct of the Kansas, since our arrival at this place, has been so audacious and even outrageous as to induce Capt. Martin, the commanding officer, to seize their chief, with several of the principal offenders and confine them to the guard house in irons.

These reputed unsophisticated beings, are deeply versed in intrigue and deceit, although the style of the bar is a language as little known to them as that of China.

After a punishment of a few days confinement the commanding officer arraigned them before him, specified the charges exhibited against them, and admitted them to plead in their own behalf.

They were charged 1st, with theft, stealing both public and private property from the garrison, while permitted to encamp near it. Thus repaying our civility, and hospitality with insult and ingratitude.

2d. With having repeatedly robbed our hunters of their game, ammunition and wearing apparel, thereby breaking those bands of peace and friendship, which they had pledged themselves to observe. Thus proving themselves false and treacherous, unworthy either our protection or confidence.

In reply to these charges, their chief rose and after casting his eyes over the guard of soldiers which invested him, thus addressed the commanding officer:

"Father—Your young men are prescribed within certain bounds; not one of them can pass that chain of sentinels without your permission, thus ever within your power, you govern them with ease. My warriors impatient of restraint as the wild horse in the toils of the hunter, brook no control, free as the air which they breathe, light and impetuous as the Antelope, they bound over mountain and moor, in the pursuit of pleasures which nature has ordained they should enjoy. To confine them to one valley would deprive them of their subsistence, they would pine and die in penury and want.

Father—These woods and streams are ours; the beaver which inhabit this river, and the buffaloe which range in these forests are ours, their skins afford us clothing and a shelter from the rude blast of winter; their meat a luxurious subsistence. Shall we then, who are lords of the forest quit the pleasures and the advantages of the hunt, and like you, confine ourselves to one solitary valley, to practise discipline and subordination, to live in idleness and indolence. No, Father—In pursuit of the elk and antelope, we will snuff the morning breeze on the mountains, and in the evening repose among the lilies of the vale, revelling on the spoils of our hunters, and in the embraces of our wives.

Father—These pleasures we invite you to participate; we also invest you with an equal right with ourselves to take meat from our forests and fish from our fountains; as freely as the Great Spirit gave them to us.

Father—We love and respect you, and mourn that there are bad men among us, who have done you wrong. Their actions Father were not within my control. Punish not the innocent for the guilty. Free our hands from these chains, we will seek out the culprits who have injured you; although they crouch in the thickest glen, or lie concealed in the recesses of the most inaccessable mountain.

Father—We will deliver them to you, to punish to your satisfaction, for the outrages they have committed against you and pledge ourselves that should one of our nation at any future period evince an evil disposition towards you, we will give him to your power, that with the rod of correction, you may open his eyes to reproof."

The sophistry of this address however, did not deter the commanding officer from severely flagellating five of the culprits who were recognised as the offenders; after which they were permitted to retire; strongly enjoined to mend their manners and morals.

I am happy to inform you that the promptness with which captain Martin, seized and punished these offenders has made a desirable and deep impression on the minds of the whole nation, since which they have evinced the most peaceable and friendly disposition, uniformly whenever they have met with our hunters, courteously taken their burthen of game and borne it to our camp.

Notwithstanding the reluctance evinced by our troops on their embarkation, and their present exiled situation, the utmost cheerfulness, harmony, and good humour prevails, every one appears enraptured with the expedition and "for bold adventures eager."

This happy change may I think be attributed to the uniform and correct system of discipline, which has been observed by the officers and the prompt and regular manner in which they have been paid.

One of our best soldiers lately received an accidental shot in the knee which has eventuated in the loss of a leg; on which the commander immediately very generously presented him with a donation of seven hundred dollars for his future support.

The troops are remarkably healthy, and the season beyond description fine.

REVIEW

Of Madame de Stael's considerations of the principal events of the French Revolution, 2 vols. 8vo.

No II.

M. de Colonne, the successor of Necker, better fitted to a court,

'Where ladies interpose, and slaves debate,'

than to the fearful crisis which approached, hastened its arrival, by the arrogance and levity of his measures. After increasing the rate of interest, in order to get money, and thereby almost precipitating embarrassment into bankruptcy, he advised the king to assemble the notables: a body whose power consisted only in the expression of their sentiments on questions submitted to them by the ministry. They were ill adapted, as Madame de Stael profoundly remarks, "to a time of public agitation, because their opinions, finding no issue, were carried to a higher state of excitement." The next probationer to M. de Calonne, was the archbishop of Thoulouse, who seems to have been a sciolous and unsteady politician When the parliament demanded his account of the national receipt and expenditure, the Abbe Sabatier exclaimed, "you demand, gentlemen, the states of receipt and expenditure, (etats de recette et de depence) when it is the states general (etats generaux) that you ought to call for." The author of this obnoxious remark was imprisoned, but it served to embody the floating wishes of the nation into a universal and irresistible desire that the states general should be convoked. This assembly not having met since the year 1614, it became necessary to decide whether the orders comprising it, namely, the clergy, the nobility, and the tiers etat, should be consolidated, or should adopt the practice of that year, by forming themselves into separate chambers. Another important question was, whether the deputies from each order should be 300, as in 1614, or the clergy and nobles retaining their former number, that of the tiers etat should be doubled. To determine these preparatory points, on which, if justice instead of precedent had been heeded, no doubt could have rested, Necker now minister again, re-assembled the notables.—The only division of that body which recommended doubling the representatives of the tiers etat, was that under the presidency of the king's brother, now Louis XVIII. The opposing opinion of the aristocratical orders was echoed by the parliament of Paris.

On the 5th of May, 1789, the deputies of France assembled at Versailles. The immoralities of many of the clergy having lessened the public respect for that order; a long peace having rusted the martial splendor of the nobility; many of whom too having been elected deputies of the Tiers Etat This portion of the assembly possessed a decided preponderance. Among those forsakers of their class, the most remarkable was the comte de Mirabeau. This celebrated demagogue, after suffering three years imprisonment for a criminal amour, and consequentially the contempt of the nobility of Provence, now brought to the revolution a mind exascerbated by punished guilt, a mortified pride. His portrait is thus sketched by the eloquent Baroness. "The opinion entertained of his talents was remarkably increased by the dread excited by his immorality; yet it was that very immorality that lessened the influence which his surprising abilities ought to have obtained for him. The eye that was once fixed on his countenance was not likely to be soon withdrawn—his immense head of hair distingushed him from amongst the rest, and suggested the idea that like Sampson, his strength depended on it; his countenance derived expression even from its ugliness; and his whole person conveyed the idea of irregular power; but still such power as we should expect to find in a tribune of the people. * * * When Mirabeau appeared, a low murmur was heard throughout the Assembly. He understood its meaning; but stepping along the hall to his seat with a lofty air, he seemed as if he were preparing to produce sufficient trouble in the country to confound the distinctions of esteem as well as all others." vol. I. p 109-110.

At the opening of the States General, the personal virtues of the king had procured to him so obvious a popularity, that the violent derogations from his authority afterward enforced by the revolutionary leaders, would, perhaps, have been prevented, if the reasonable claims of the Tiers Etat had been immediately and sincerely granted. But the jealous folly of the aristocrats persuaded Louis to procrastinate the order which he had promised to Necker, that the three classes of the assembly should coalesce. This order was at length published, but after a delay long enough for the malcontents to ascertain their strength; for the Tiers Etat to receive a formidable secession from the clergy and noblesse; for the States General to adopt, at the suggestion of Sieyes, the title of "national assembly"; and for the baneful influence of secret advisers, to manifest the imbecility and fickleness of the court. Still, however, its publication, tho' obviously the result of necessity, produced a transcient satisfaction: but the fatal step of summoning to Paris the German regiments, under Marshal Broglio, soon dispelled it. This design was long concealed from the minister, and when secrecy became impossible, he was told that its object was "the suppression of some partial troubles at Paris." Though the penetration of Necker could not be deceived, his patriotism could not be surprised. Foreseeing that his resignation at this juncture, however triumphant, must endanger public tranquility, he resolved to risk that incarceration in the Bastile which the courtiers doomed for him on the arrival of Broglio. This violence was averted by apprehensions of the minister's popularity, but in eight days after he received orders to quit France, and to conceal his departure. An instance of this event illustrates the king's reliance on the integrity of Necker. The Baron de Breteuil had advised his arrest, as his dismissal might cause a tumult. "I will answer," said Louis, "that he will obey strictly my injunction in regard to secrecy." This act of feverish energy, not unnatural to a falling monarchy, produced the insurrection of the 14th of July. On that day, the Bastile surrendered to the infuriated patriots, and so far had the benevolence of Louis diminished the evils of despotism, that, according to Marmontel and De Moleville, only seven prisoners were found within its walls. The popular discontent at the dismission of Necker, and the eloquence of Lally Tollendal, soon produced an invitation for his return. But his moderation and his favor with the nation were now insufficient to retard the headlong progress of the revolution. The intrigues of Mirabeau and his emmissaries had stimulated the slothful vice of Paris, and prepared the mob to discard the remnant of respect which was still felt for the unfortunate king. A body of men, terrible by their numbers and their fury, departed to Versailles to bring thence Louis and the Assembly to Paris. M. de la Fayette, at the head of the National Guards, arrived to protect the palace; but the assassins penetrated through a passage which had been neglectfully left open, and Maria Antoinette saved her life only by flying through a secret entry, to the king's apartment. On the day next this event, the populace loudly demanded the removal of the king and the royal family to Paris.—"Then, says our authoress, "the queen appeared in the hall; her hair dishevelled, her countenance pale, but dignified; every thing in her person was striking to the imagination. The people required that she should appear on the balcony, and, as the whole court, which is called the marble court, was full of men with fire arms in their hands, the queen's countenance discovered her apprehensions; yet she advanced without hesitation along with her two children, who served as her safeguard. The multitude seemed affected on seeing the queen as a mother, and political rage became appeased at the sight: those, who that very night had perhaps wished to assassinate her, extolled her name to the skies. The populace, in a state of insurrection, are, in general, inaccessible to reasoning, and are to be acted on only by sensations rapid as electricity, and communicated in a similar manner. Mobs are, according to circumstances, better or worse than the individuals who compose them; but, whatever be their temper, they are to be prompted to crime as to virtue, only by having recourse to a natural impulsion. * * * * The king and queen were taken to their capital. We went to Paris by a different road, which spared us that dreadful sight. It was thro' the Bois de Boulogne that we went, and the weather was uncommonly fine; the breeze scarcely agitated the trees, and the sun was sufficiently bright to leave nothing gloomy in the prospect; no outward object was in correspondence with our grief. How often does this contrast, between the beauty of nature and the sufferings inflicted by man, renew itself in the course of life!" Vol. 1, p 206.

The constituent assembly, after arriving at Paris, was no longer uncontrolled in its deliberations. The Jacobins already began to manifest that fearful energy, which, at a subsequent period, supplied the want of virtue, popularity and talent, and was now sufficient to procure from the assembly a law declaring the church lands to be national property. In defending this bold invasion of undoubted rights, Madame de Stael appears to less advantage than in any other part of the book, except, perhaps, where she censures the degradation of the privileged orders. Still, however, as it is quite impossible that she can ever be weak, she has founded the argument on principles whose abstract truth it will be difficult to deny, but which were altogether unknown to the authors of that measure. The most weighty of these are, that a large proportion of the property of the churchmen was given them by the crown, "not as a personal favor, but to ensure divine service," and that the States General had a right to alter the manner of providing for the support of the clergy. Now, whatever may have been the origin of ecclesiastical property, its claims to the national protection were fortified by the acquiescence of centuries, and by the exclusion of its owners from the customary avenues to gain.—Besides, a great portion of it was constituted by the bequests of individual founders, and this part at least, as it was urged by the enemies to the law, ought not to have been diverted from its original appropriation. Here Madame de Stael asks "what means does man possess of giving the stamp of eternity to his resolutions? Are we to search in the darkness of time for titles that are no more, in order to oppose them to living reason?" The argument thus interrogatively given, loses its value by proving too much; for may it not be asked in reply on what other principle rests the validity of testaments than on allowing a posthumous efficacy to the will of man?

The confiscation of ecclesiastical property was followed by the suppression of religious orders and monastic vows. The creation of a constitutional clergy, Mad. de Stael very properly censures, as tending to introduce calculation into religion, and to support bigotry by the secular arm.

Richmond, March, 15.

The general assembly finally adjourned on Saturday, after a tedious session of 98 days, having passed 273 acts, and finished the important work of the revision of the laws. [Patriot.

Baltimore, March 15.

Extract of a letter from Messrs. Lynch, Hill and Co. of St. Jago de Chili, dated Nov. 12, 1818, to a respectable mercantile house in this city.

"The abandonment of the Talcahuana, and the prospect of success against Lima, has given fresh life to our markets, and better prices can now be obtained. The realization of these prospects will open an immense tract of populous country to the enterprise of merchants, of which our friends in America we hope will have a large share. We have never before witnessed so favorable a prospect.

The following goods are of most general consumption, and commonly command ready sales and good prices, viz:

India cotton goods of low and middling qualities.—German, French and Irish linens assorted, fine and middling do.

English printed calicoes, dark ground and fancy patterns.

French silk goods, small amount and well assorted.

Furniture such as bureaus, card tables, chairs, settees, &c &c.

Wines are scarce, and small quantities of Carlon, Teneriffe and French wines generally, would sell well.

Munitions of war are a complete drug."

SHIPWRECK

Of the brig Telegraph, of Providence, bound from Savannah, for New-York.

Extract of a letter from Capt. Hill, to his consignee, dated at Great Egg Harbor, Somers' Point, March 7.

"I have to inform you of the loss of the brig Telegraph, under my command, on the morning of the 4th inst. about 5 o'clock. She went ashore about 6 miles to the northward of G. Egg Harbor, and wore part way round, but hung by the stern.—I placed every thing aback, but all in vain; a heavy sea beating over her continually, drifted us into the breakers, and at day light we were but about 15 rods from the beach. Early in the morning we began to get out the cargo, and am happy to state that we succeeded in getting the whole ashore, except 2 bales of cotton which drifted to sea. The brig has bilged, and can never be got off. I have stripped her of every thing and got all safe on shore, which I must sell for whom it may concern, with enough of the cargo to pay expenses."

We are authorised to state that Cuthbert Powel, Esq declines being considered a Candidate for the Senate for the next election.

We are authorised to announce William H. Fitzhugh Esq. of Fairfax, as a Candidate for the next Senatorial district, composed at the next election, of the counties of Loudoun, Fairfax, and Fauquir.

Notice,

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Harness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.

BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the county aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the county around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. The estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole; it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The rivel and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, on or

PROPOSALS
BY JOSEPH M. SANDERSON, for publishing by subscription,
A BIOGRAPHY OF THE SIGNERS
TO THE
Declaration of Independence,
ACCOMPANIED WITH PLATES;

To which will be annexed a history of the proceedings of congress during the passage of the law, and the Declaration itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures.

By PAUL ALLEN, Esq.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT seems a little surprising that amongst so many subjects as have been presented for American Biography, the lives of those who have affixed their signatures to the Declaration of Independence have been overlooked or disregarded. The eyes of thousands have dwelt with rapture upon the document that announced to the world that "these United Colonies were, and of right ought to be, free, sovereign, and independent states;" while we are better acquainted with the handwriting than with the characters of many of those illustrious men who have added their signatures to that instrument. The founders of the only remaining republic on the globe, have, with a few splendid exceptions, gone to their graves, and it behoves a generous posterity, sensible of their obligations, to preserve their fame. The longer we neglect the payment of so sacred a debt, the more difficult does the payment become.—Traits of individual character are fugitive and evanescent; and if they are not snatched by the hand of the Biographic Muse, at an early season, from the cold grasp of death, will soon partake of the oblivion of the body.—It is not the object of the present attempt to deal in that profusion of indiscriminate and unsparing panegyric, so often and so falsely dignified with the name of Biography; we wish to represent the characters as they were, they stand in need of no panegyric; and we earnestly solicit from the surviving relations and friends of those revolutionary patriots all the information that will tend to a developement of character. Man is the creature of circumstance, and we wish to show the progress of those patriots from their first resistance of colonial aggression, until they stood forth the noble and undaunted champions of their country's independence. All this can only be done by a familiar acquaintance with the lives of these men, and whoever of the surviving friends or relatives will furnish facts and circumstances in their possession to unfold and illustrate their characters, shall be entitled to a copy of the work as a recompense. It is contemplated, wherever it is practicable, further to embellish the meditated work with correct likenesses of the subjects of our biography, executed by the most eminent artists in the country. For this purpose we again solicit the assistance of their surviving relatives and friends. If they will transmit to the publisher any engraving or portrait from which a copy may be taken, the original shall be faithfully returned, and shall likewise be remunerated with a copy of the work. In the first number it is proposed to give an account of the Declaration of Independence, from the first motion that was made on the floor of congress until its final passage into a law, a period embracing much curious and secret history: finally, we promise to add to our last number the Declaration of Independence itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures. We have now compendiously stated the objects of our present undertaking, and we hope that it will be unnecessary to mention that no exertions on our part shall be spared.

The public are now in possession of our project, which does indeed seem to be demanded, by the avidity so recently displayed for the possession of the Declaration of Independence, since it is of very little import to become acquainted with a man's hand writing without a previous knowledge of the man. The secret history of our Declaration of Independence, the lives of those who have affixed their signatures to that instrument, accompanied by their likenesses, and finally the Declaration itself with fac-similes of the signatures, will bring into one compact view the prominent facts of that interesting crisis.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be published in numbers, or half volumes, of 150 pages octave, and will be contained in ten numbers.

II. It will be printed on fine paper made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per half volume or number, payable on delivery.

☞ Subscriptions will be received at the office of the Alexandria Gazette.
